

SUCCESS STORIES: HAMMOND COMMUNITY JUNIOR SCHOOL

Based in Surrey, Hammond Community Junior School is a highly successful institution serving around 350 students from years 3 to 6. The school had been relying on coat hooks situated in school corridors to provide personal storage to their pupils but were seeking a more effective solution that would make better use of the available space.

As is commonly the case with coat hook storage areas, unsecured items were obstructing busy thoroughfares and making it difficult for students to quickly identify their belongings. The general disorder caused by fallen items was also contributing to the amount of lost property and increasing the likelihood of trips and slips.

The need for an overhaul was made clearer by a health and safety inspection, which suggested that coat hook lined corridors could be damaging the school's high fire safety standards.

Recommendations of this sort are increasingly common as inspectors seek to bring older school buildings into alignment with modern guidelines.

Hammond School acted without delay to ensure they met the latest safety recommendations. After receiving a number of quotes, the school found our pricing to be extremely competitive, and were particularly drawn to the high quality design and installation service that we provide as standard.

We were also able to offer a sample locker unit to trial with their students, aiding the decision making process and ensuring they received the right sizes and colours.

Their greatest concern was the limited space available – where and how to fit in enough lockers. With over 25 years' experience, our expert designers went to work to deliver the greatest possible storage space.

Following our guidance, the school settled on a layout that divided the lockers into several areas, each serving a particular year group. This design not only released more corridor space for the school but also ensures that students can find their belongings quickly in dedicated areas.

Overall, Hammond School are exceptionally pleased with their brand new Atlas Lockers. The sleek and ergonomic design, in combination with the improved layout, means the school now has much more space than expected. Most importantly, busy circulation routes are more orderly, reducing the potential for accidents and lost property, while clearer thoroughfares greatly improve the school's fire safety standards.

"Brilliant from sales to installation team, I felt they were confident and competent with the job and the locker sample was a great idea. The installation team always talk to you to clear any things up, very very helpful guys."
