Radleys Primary School is located just north of Birmingham and serves around 210 pupils from nursery to year 6. The school holds high expectations for its students, receiving good in all areas from Ofsted last year, with elements of outstanding practice.

The buildings are exceptionally well maintained with plenty of space to play outside. However, like many primary schools, Radleys were using coat hooks to provide students with a place to store coats, bags and other essentials. The resulting mess was damaging the clean and calm environment the school’s staff have worked hard to create. There were also concerns that fallen bags and coats might present a fire hazard, potentially slowing egress from the building.

Radleys were determined to bring their pupil storage areas up to the high standards set throughout the rest of the buildings and grounds. They decided school lockers could help keep student belongings stowed away safely, all while giving the children a chance to take responsibility for their own space.

Most importantly, teachers and staff hoped their new lockers would add to the friendly and welcoming atmosphere, preferably matching the school’s own colour theme.

Radleys found the perfect solution quickly and easily through our website. The price quoted for our versatile Atlas Steel Locker range was much lower than expected, making a second quote from another supplier unnecessary. Our units appeared better built, with extra features like a full-height reinforcement bar and one-touch replaceable doors. In addition, we offer custom colour options, so matching the school theme was no problem at all.

Our friendly storage experts helped overcome their concerns one by one. Though staff initially worried about the available space, our designers made more room than ever before, even enabling a new display area above the lockers. Meanwhile, our experienced on-site team made sure of a timely and hassle-free installation.

The final result is a pupil storage solution that Radleys can be proud of. The school has noticed students are taking better care of their own lockers, and these areas are much tidier and more pleasant to be in as a result. The increased space ensures each room can be exited easily, improving health and safety standards, while the sleek locker design and matching colours boost the experience of students, staff and parents alike.
